Current Position

As above

Reasons

1. By selecting kiteboarding at the expense of windsurfing ISAF has deleted one of the most popular events in terms of participation and global spread.
 2. Kiteboarding is a new and fascinating discipline of sailing and has proven to be ready for inclusion in the Olympic Sailing programme.
 3. Women's participation will be encouraged and increased by inclusion of mixed team event for both windsurfing and kiteboarding.
 4. The inclusion of mixed teams requires minimal change to athlete quotas for other events – it is envisaged that 16 teams (32 sailors), representing 16 countries, could participate in the windsurfing and kiteboarding events. This structure lends itself to both fleet racing and elimination series.

5. The windsurfing and kiteboarding equipment is both suitable and proven for different disciplines (racing, speed) and formats (course racing, slalom, marathon).
6. The proposed slate presents a much more balanced approach and achieves more of the objectives outlined in the ISAF Olympic Commission report than the current slate.
7. The proposed slate offers developing nations an additional low cost event to expand their chances of participation in the Olympic Games, especially those nations in Africa & Asia.
8. Logistics are vastly simplified for groups and individuals; for national and international travel.
9. Training and coaching opportunities can be shared between men and women ; and between both disciplines.
10. The inclusion of both windsurfing and kiteboarding supports the development towards more youth and spectator/media friendly events, as requested by the IOC.
11. The current junior pathway class, the Techno 293 Class, selected as equipment for use in the Youth Olympics, is a suitable pathway to both Olympic windsurfing and Olympic kiteboarding.
12. Both windsurfing and kiteboarding have well developed worldwide distribution networks.

Note. For future clarity & continuity (within Regulations) it is proposed that the event is referred to as Kiteboard and Windsurfer, and the discipline as Kiteboarding and Windsurfing.
