2. Reports
   (a) World Sailing President
       The President commented how privileged he felt chairing his first Council meeting as World Sailing President but that he wanted to address some items of importance that were affecting the core of our sport.
       The President had hoped to move sailing forward at a faster rate but he felt that the way we are operating, and the processes we have to use, needed to be addressed as a matter of priority and this involved everyone working together as a team.
       It is extremely important to align the decision-making structure, there needs to be a strong synchronization between the council, board and the executive bodies which must not involve politics. Politics must be reserved to open and honest discussions in Council and everyone needed to regain a level of trust in each other and in the organization.
       Good communication is key and he was aware that some important communications were not always reaching the right people.
       The President advised that we also need to consider the current structure of World Sailing to make sure we are serving and engaging with the important stakeholders of our sport. There has been a lot of requests for cross representation, but if we have a full cross representation within our committee structure what is the point of having specialist committees that make recommendations to Council?

This four year term, the Board appointed the Committee Chairmen and Vice-Chairmen and then made the logical decision to request that they decide on the new appointments to their Committees so they felt empowered to work together as a specialist unit, to take responsibility and in particular so they could deliver clear advice to Council.

The President stressed that it was one of his priorities to assess the current structure within World Sailing over this next quad.

There were also a further three key areas that need to be addressed:

1) Keeping sailing in the Olympics and Paralympics by increasing participation and growing the global audience

2) Growing the sport Geographically

3) Increasing levels of transparency and accountability

i) Keeping sailing in the Olympics and Paralympics by increasing participation and growing the global audience

To regain Para Sailing into the Paralympics is of the utmost importance. The President urged that all MNAs should act now – many new nations are rising to the challenge but some of the existing MNAs who have had Paralympic programmes previously are not reacting proactively as their budgets have been cut. This must not happen.

The Olympics is another area where we have to be innovative and not slow to adapt. The President reported that World Sailing had proposed two showcase events and these had been received positively by the IOC. Unfortunately the criticism by our own members for these proposed events was not acceptable, it was extremely important for everyone to understand how essential it is we promote our sport.

Sailing has 380 athletes at the Games compared to the average number of participants from other international federations being 230 - this makes us stand out. Furthermore, we have been identified as one of 10 IFs with no major change to the program. Whilst changes have been made in recent months we must be prepared for change.

The President outlined opportunities and challenges that could shape the Olympic program in the future:

- Making a direct line in increasing women’s participation.
- Gender equity, having 50/50 athletes and/or medals.
  Mixed Gender possibilities - “The IOC to encourage the inclusion of mixed-gender team events”.

But this also leaves us with questions that we must ask ourselves:

- Should we have a stronger connection between disciplines and club activities?
- Do we want to develop multi medal disciplines or a program that makes it possible?
- How to increase the number of Nations in the Olympic venue and Qualification?
- Do we want more medals?
- Should we have a look at how to reduce the cost driving factors of Olympic campaigns?
- How to create more value for our sailors?

ii) Growing the sport geographically

Media and Development Programs will help World Sailing grow the sport geographically.

By using new technology, we can make sailing an interesting sport to watch. But it will still take time to develop the know-how and to promote the heroes of our sport using new technology but World Sailing has a huge opportunity with the new partnership with SAP.

Development programs is another key area and the Emerging Nations program is on schedule. However, moving forward we must create a place where we can exchange best practices and create new ideas, as well as connect to already existing programs. This will allow for experienced nations to share their knowledge and experience, but we can also further capitalize on existing successful programs by adding new possibilities like creating virtual events.

The President emphasized that there was also a need to focus on opportunities to grow women’s participation worldwide – we must have a strong women’s participation program.

Finally, in this area, getting new MNAs into the World Sailing family is key and we must look at how we can streamline this process to make it quick and simple.

iii) Increase the level of transparency and accountability in our governance

The President was pleased to report that last month we conducted the first ever World Sailing MNA Survey. Each MNAs gave their input and the input received from each individual MNA was culminated into the respective MNA Groups. This survey will be a compass that guides World Sailing in development and will be a way of defining the priorities and directions for the future. A strategy will be presented to Council at the Mid-Year 2018 meeting.

The office relocation is well underway and the CEO has started recruiting new key personnel with the aim that the rehiring process will be finalized in time for the Annual Conference 2017. Moving to London is a great commitment but we will have a modern, truly international and multilingual organization in new headquarters. The President looks forward to welcoming the World Sailing family to the new London HQ.

The IOC Agenda 2020 is a lot more than just issues around the Olympic venue, it makes 40 recommendations about how to improve governance, priorities and direction for the Olympics. These recommendations should be used for our own strategy.

The President reported that we have made a major move in developing our Commercial attractiveness securing SAP as a tier one sponsor with a further tier one sponsor expected to be announced shortly.

Finally, the budget approved in November was based on a high level of commercial activity. We have been challenged on some of the assumptions and there has been talk that we have been over optimistic. A full presentation on the annual accounts for 2016 and an updated 2017 budget will be given which includes an evaluation of the risks and major projects on hand.

In conclusion, the President reiterated his strong and steadfast belief in the sport and in the organization. He wants to build an organization which is truly transparent both in decision making and dialog with a synchronized operating structure, respect for the World Sailing organization and the roles within the international organization.
Everyone plays an important part in World Sailing’s operations, and it must operate smoothly. This means ensuring that our regulations and processes are working and the dedicated people managing World Sailing are working with us.

This is the goal, and it is important to unite around our sport, to unite around our organization and to unite around each other. Now is the time to show each other and the world what sailors and World Sailing is made of. The President finished by asking for everyone’s continued support.

(a) Proposed Anti-trust / Monopolies Policy

The Director of Legal Affairs and Governance summarised the Board’s paper before Council, which had been prepared following concerns raised with World Sailing. The review had been undertaken in consultation with the Olympic Classes, the Equipment Committee’s Working Party and external legal advisors.

The review looked at three main areas – (a) the criteria and processes used to select new Olympic equipment, (b) the process for reviewing the currently selected Olympic equipment and, (c) the processes for monitoring the production and quality of Olympic equipment.

In particular, the review examined the impact of EU competition law and the Board recommended these proposals to Council for approval in principle.

George Wossola (HUN) put forward a motion to defer this decision until the Annual Conference 2017 but subsequently withdrew this motion recognising the proposals were for Council to approve in principle.

Decision

On a proposal from Peter Hall (CAN), seconded by Ulfur Hrobjartsson (ISL), the paper was approved in principle (33 in favour, 3 against, 1 abstain – 37 participated).
